Week of Moreau at Colegio Nuestra Señora de Adacollo

With the theme of “Educating Minds and Hearts Throughout the World,” students at Colegio Nuestra Señora de Andacollo celebrated a week dedicated to the life and spirituality of Holy Cross founder Blessed Basil Moreau. This year, with new events and workshops, there was great interest throughout the school community. Each year, there are initiatives by Campus Ministry and the Religious serving in the school to provide formation in the spirituality of Blessed Moreau and the international mission of the Congregation of Holy Cross.

In addition to priests and brothers, it is truly a Congregational mission, with all the branches of the Congregation ministering in the school: the sisters from Canada and Perú, seminarians from Perú and Haiti, Postulants from Chile and the two University of Notre Dame graduates serving in the OLM program.

Students competed in a “Jeopardy-like contest on Holy Cross mission and spirituality. Each grade level studied one country in which the Congregation serves and through the websites of the Congregation, made presentations and displays on the work of Holy Cross throughout the world. Images of the Religious throughout the world, flags and pictures of apostolates adorned the patios and garden areas of the school.

Prayers for all of the works of the Congregation were shared during the week dedicated to Blessed Moreau and the Congregation’s international mission.

Holy Cross Lay Collaborators Reflect on Their Mission

“United as Brothers and Sisters in Mission” was the theme for the 8th annual gathering of more than 200 lay colleagues from the apostolates of the Congregation of Holy Cross in Chile. It is an opportunity for lay colleagues and young people from all of the apostolates to know one another, dialogue and share hopes for their work with the Congregation in Chile.

Participants discussed the challenges that the Church in Chile faces today in reaching out to young people. Testimonies by the youth of our parishes and schools encouraged Religious and lay colleagues on how Holy Cross might be able to invite them to deepen their faith and participation in the life of the Church.

Participants also celebrated the Holy Cross Year of the Brother. Br. Joaquin Parada, C.S.C., gave a moving testimony on his life in Holy Cross as an educator and his service in parishes with ministries to the poor, elderly and infirmed. With the challenges in education today in Chile and his experience in schools of the Congregation and other public schools in poor sectors, his words were received well by those in attendance.

More than 250 gathered in San Roque to share in the day of prayer, reflection, dialogue and celebration. The final blessing of the day was a sending forth for each one, as they returned to their mission in Holy Cross, affirmed of their importance as educators in the faith and in mission with the Congregation.

Moreau Seminary recently joined the Green Seminary Initiative, an organization that promotes efforts by theological schools and seminaries to incorporate care for God’s creation into the identity and mission of the institution.

“If we really consider it, a commitment to sustainability is the natural response to God’s love shown in creation. These blessings are many and like any treasure we want to protect and properly use them,” said David Halm, C.S.C., a seminarian directing Moreau’s sustainability efforts. “The GSI and Notre Dame’s Office of Sustainability are tremendous partners in helping us learn and promote this stewardship.”

More than 40 seminaries around the country have joined the GSI. The program is housed at Drew Theological School, which also provides support and is guided by a diverse set of scholars and seminarians dedicated to faith-based earth care.

Excerpts from the Eulogy for Father David Verhalen, C.S.C.
By Rev. Herb Yost, C.S.C.

When I informed my classmates of David’s death, there was a unanimous feeling that an era of our lives had ended. To a man, we remembered David’s kindness, his love for life, his humor, his spirit. We knew that he loved and respected us. There was no doubt in our minds that even then he was in touch with a deep source of life, yet we never knew him to be dogmatic or self-righteous ...

Fr. Don Fetters wrote this from the Novitiate in Peru:
“I don’t remember what he taught me about Spanish. What I do know is that when I walked out of my last class with him, I loved Spanish and decided I would work on it and use it—and it became an important part of my life. I also walked out with the great desire to be a teacher—and so that’s the kind of thing I’ve done ever since. He didn’t just teach, but got us excited—and not just about Spanish...but also about life, and how it was fun and funny, mysterious and awesome, and something to wake up to enthusiastically every day...”

And so began a journey that was to take him to the desert of New Mexico, to several assignments that enabled him to devote more time to the solitary life of prayer and reflection, and above all to the piney woods of Texas, where he did his most significant inner work in his little one-room hermitage. This journey was made a bit more difficult by the opposition he experienced from his brothers. As an active apostolic religious community, several could not understand how solitude and ministry went together, or what solitude had to do with community. There was verbal sniping, sometimes outright mockery, plus questions about his mental or spiritual health. Yet he persisted in his quest, because deep within he knew it was the Spirit calling him out into the physical and inner desert.

It was in his two years in the Texas hermitage—from 1998 to 2002—that everything finally started to come together...

David thought he was going into the wilderness to find God. Instead he found himself. He was terribly disappointed at first, until he realized that’s where God is. God lives quiet in the soul.

“God lives quiet in the soul.” David came to realize that he — as do most of us — had been doing things backwards. We look at the events of our life as random happenings which bring sorrow or bring joy, or more often, some kind of an “eh ... so what.” Our personal spirituality is so often disconnected from our daily life ... look at the very language we use about our “prayer life,” our “apostolic life,” our “community life.” Each is in its proper niche, instead of being experienced as a seamless whole.

And then came the events of July 2011. On the 15th of that month David was rushed to the hospital and was very near death. At one point, he had a near-death experience that showed him his place in the universe. Hearing him trying to describe it, I was reminded of the pictures of interstellar space taken by the Hubble telescope, except for him it wasn’t a picture — it was a reality ... he was part of it, immersed in the universe. David called this his experience of God, and it left him with an enormous sense of joy, peace, love, fulfillment and wholeness. He wrote: “I felt no fear or sense of death or loss. Everything was just as it should be and I was graced to be a part of it all.” As St. Paul said: “Eye has not seen and ear has not heard what God has prepared for those who love him.”

In the course of his hospitalization, David had what he felt was a conversation with God. He asked God how much longer he had to live. God replied: “As long as you need.” David had a deep intuition that he needed to write a spiritual memoire, and so broached that possibility to God. God apparently said, “That’s fine. You’ll have time. Go for it.”

A week ago today, I was at Holy Cross House for the Sunday evening social. David was in great form — hale, hearty, taking a few humorous pokes at me. Before going into dinner, David told me he had finished writing, and that he and Maury Amen had gone over the manuscript correcting the spelling and the grammar ... Maury e-mailed me the news of David's death around 9 that morning. While sitting in the chapel of St. Paul's retirement community preparing myself for the 10 a.m. Mass, thinking of all the lives that had been touched by David, of how my classmates would feel, of how I felt ... there suddenly flashed into my mind two lines from the spiritual Amazing Grace, two lines which rolled through my mind every time I thought of David this week:

“I once was lost but now am found; was blind but now I see.”

Excerpts from Homily for Rev. Thomas Campbell, C.S.C

By Rev. James Chichetto, C.S.C.

In 1939, the year that Tom Campbell entered Our Lady of Holy Cross Seminary, the situation of the world was far from certain. Insecurity reigned. In fact, the world was being turned upside down. Austria, Czechoslovakia, and Poland had disappeared, absorbed by a hate-filled empire that destroyed everyone and anything that lay in its conquering path. England and France readily prepared to use their might to stop this marching demonic power. In East Asia, chaos also reigned, as Japan pillaged and occupied parts of China. A full-blown World War was soon clearly underway, one that would eventually take the lives of over 60 million people.

Amid this infernal chaos, Tom Campbell heard not the call of Uncle Sam, but that of Jesus Christ, who called out to Tom and invited him to follow. It is not us who choose Christ; but, as our Gospel states, Christ who chooses us. Despite this reality, that decision must have been a struggle at that time in history! But for Tom, it was an easy one. He heard Christ calling his name, inviting him to abide in Him, and remain in His love. Unlike so many men and women who entered World War II, Tom chose another path in order to lay down his life for his friends. He chose a different battlefield — the pastoral one — to serve his neighbor and his God. Tom willingly dedicated his life to God in service of his neighbor.

Throughout his life, Tom was a man for others. As a professor, he shared his accumulated wisdom and study of theology, philosophy and the classics with the young men and women of Stonehill and King’s Colleges. As a scholar, Tom brought forth the essential writing of the sixth century theologian and philosopher, Pseudo Dionysius, and made it accessible for all to read — a translation still used by scholars and researchers today. And as a pastoral minister, a priest of the Congregation of Holy Cross, Tom directly served the people of God in diverse cathedral and parish settings on Cape Cod, in Manhattan, the Bronx and Fall River. These multifaceted aspects of Tom’s life and ministry informed and influenced each other. Intense, deep spiritual reading, study and writing nourished his practical pastoral life. Similarly, dialogues in the counseling rooms of St. Patrick’s Cathedral’s rectory and the vestibles of many of Fall River’s Catholic churches placed human faces on the ideas emanating from complex theological and philosophical treaties.

In all of this, Tom was a man whose life exemplified the life of an individual — a religious — who abided in Christ. A threefold motto exemplified his life: radical poverty, simplicity of lifestyle and nourishment of mind and soul through study. He lived all three with a great zeal and enthusiasm. He was truly happy with his life choices. A cherubic smile marked his sign of approval, followed by an unmistakable laugh. An engaging story followed not far behind.

In his later years, Tom had a great deal of time to reflect on his life and life in general. He enjoyed long strolls around the beautiful Stonehill campus, beret on his head and walking stick in hand. While he walked, he pondered and thought about the little things and the big things of life. The older he became the more the realities of life set in, especially as his close friends died. At times, it was challenging for him to be one of the oldest in the province. Despite such realities, Tom was hopeful, but also realistic. In all of this, the love and joy of his nieces, nephews and their families offered him so much hope.

In this hope and trust, Tom planned his Mass of Resurrection. The scriptural readings he chose are meaningful and profound. We, like Tom, through Baptism, share in Christ’s death. And through this sharing with Christ, Christ promises us to share in the eternal life of His resurrection. Death no longer has power over us. For we live with Christ, and Christ lives in us.

Christ surely lived in and through Tom. After a fulfilling and long life, he has gone to God. We remain here on Earth. Following Tom’s example, let us, too, be ever more aware of our Baptismal promises and recommit ourselves ever more to Christ. And most of all let us follow Christ’s command: Love one another.
500 Attend Healing Mass, Blessing in Easton

A Holy Relic of St. André Bessette was included in a Healing Mass and Blessing at St. Joseph Chapel at the Father Peyton Center in Easton, Mass., near the second anniversary of the Canonization of Holy Cross’ first Saint.

St. André was Canonized on Oct. 17, 2010. The Mass and blessing were celebrated in both English and French the weekend of Oct. 6 and 7 and included a procession, Rosary, anointing with Holy Oil, blessing with the relic and the Eucharist.

By all accounts, the Mass and blessing were a huge success! More than 500 people attended the two-day event. Mass was conducted in French by Rev. Jean Gustave Miracle on Oct. 6 and in English by Rev. Hugh Cleary, C.S.C., on Oct. 7. Following the Mass and Blessing, many people visited the book store at the Father Peyton Center. According to the Center’s Chaplain, Rev. Leo Polselli, C.S.C., the store had a record sales day!
